THE PSC INDUSTRY EDGE

We are an industry leader in photography education, and we know how to get our students industry connected and career ready. We deliver specialised practically focused tertiary qualifications that open up job and career opportunities.

Extensive industry networks

Our lecturers are leading professionals highly respected and connected in the photography image making industry. These connections often lead to direct job and work experience outcomes for students and graduates. Our large professional studios are extremely well supported and equipped through our strong local industry connections with SUNSTUDIOS, Broncolor, Kayell, and Elinchrom.

Global links

Links with International creatives, photographers, content producers and videographers through our extensive online image makers seminars and lectures. Also links to major international Photography Festivals and organisations, international photography tours, overseas colleges and our many highly respected international mentors ensure our students are constantly exposed to numerous global opportunities.

Job ready graduates

Our students graduate job ready and with industry networks through our industry focussed curriculum, entrepreneurial and marketing subjects, the final year industry mentor program and the PSC job register.

Industry mentor program

Building a network of external mentors and industry contacts is often a pathway to employment, jobs and a deeper connection with the creative industries. In our extensive and unique mentor program, students work with local, national and international industry professionals to build those networks and contacts.

Industry focused curriculum

To foster industry knowledge and tangible connections in final year of the course students become members of the peak industry body and take part in the industry awards. Students make their work highly visible by regularly submitting work to a range of awards, publications and have a strong social media and online presence. Our high level well equipped facilities allow our curriculum to be delivered in spaces that replicate 'real world' on the job scenarios.

ROCHELLE HANSEN

DOCUMENTARY PHOTOGRAPHER |
VIDEOGRAPHER

Rochelle has incorporated her love of travel and goals to shed light on human rights issues, into her photography career. Since graduating in 2016 she has worked with a range of NGOs in Asia and Africa, and recently travelled to Kenya with BeadWORKS, to document remote communities and their work to empower women. When back in Melbourne she works full-time for a production company Sense6, as a photographer and videographer.

“I would highly recommend studying the Bachelor of Photography....because of the small intimate classes and amazing teachers. I learnt so much while at PSC and it really shaped who I am as a photographer.....”

– Rochelle Hansen

JO DUCK

COMMERCIAL | FASHION PHOTOGRAPHER

Jo's career is on a roll. After graduating from PSC 12 years ago, she is making a name for herself in the international fashion photography industry and art world. Currently she photographs actors, models and luxury fashion brands. She has had her images published in fashion's top magazines such as Harper's Bazaar and GQ and worked in London, New York, and L.A.

“In my course I learned a lot of technical skills, I especially loved learning studio lighting. PSC has a great sense of community and I had a great network of teachers and friends, many are still a big part of my life today.”

– Jo Duck

ANDREW HARDY

PHOTOGRAPHER |
FILMMAKER

Andrew at 26 is a successful photographer, videographer, filmmaker and founder of Fēlan Films, a production company with clients including Sony Alpha, Tourism Tasmania, Mini Cooper and Zomato Australia. He often travels to the USA and frequently shoots in stunning locations around the world.

“I chose PSC because of the variety of subjects and aspects of photography that the course covered. PSC specialises in photography, and that is evident in the work from all previous students.”

– Andrew Hardy

ANNETTE O'BRIEN

COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHER

Annette specialises in interiors, homewares, lifestyle and product photography for her range of commercial and editorial clients. She's built a very successful photography business working with stylists and shooting for commercial clients for their latest collections. She also is busy doing shoots for magazines such as Australian House and Garden, Adore and Home Beautiful while working on her first book.

“At PSC I learned everything from practical and technical skills, to developing ideas and research. It constantly pushed me out of my comfort zone and in such a supportive environment. I also got to assist some fantastic photographers!”

– Annette O'Brien

JAMES BUGG

DOCUMENTARY PHOTOGRAPHER

As a documentary photographer James is interested in visual storytelling. His work revolves around people, place and circumstance. In 2018 he won the $50,000 Moran Contemporary Photographic Prize, becoming the youngest recipient in the prize's history. His work has been featured in publications such as The Guardian, Paper Journal, Capture Magazine and AINT-BAD. James is now studying his Masters at PSC and his work 'Bush Dance' commissioned by Photo Australia is showing at PHOTO 2022.

“PSC is such a close-knit network of people who I can always rely on for advice and inspiration.”

CASSANDRA TZORTZOGLU

COMMERCIAL |
WEDDING PHOTOGRAPHER

After graduating with an award for excellence in 2016 Cassandra started her photography business, shooting both commercially and weddings. She loves both aspects and splits her time fifty-fifty between the two. She finds the mix gives her flexibility financially and the opportunity to grow as a photographer and company.

“The support system, equipment and teachers available (at PSC) .... is remarkable and something you will look back on and cherish.”

– Cassandra Tzortzoglou

KEITH PARSONS

VISUAL CONTENT CREATOR

After graduating in 2012 Keith spent a year in Africa freelancing. He then moved to London taking up an internship and then full-time position on the Picture Desk at the Daily Telegraph. Keith also worked for the Arctic Heritage Trust as a cinematographer/filmmaker documenting their month-long expedition crossing the Greenland Ice Cap. Following completion of his Masters, Keith returned to Melbourne where he now works for Oxfam as a videographer.

“PSC has helped me immensely in forming my thoughts about photography and its potential... it taught me visual culture, a visual language and most importantly ethics. I was exposed to stimulating discussions, and robustly challenged at class critiques, all of which sharpened my practice and thinking.”

CHRIS HOPKINS

PHOTOJOURNALIST |
FREELANCE PHOTOGRAPHER

Walkley Award winning photojournalist and PSC's 2010 graduate Chris Hopkins works for The Guardian, New York Times and The Age. Based in Melbourne, he focuses on social justice, humanitarian issues and shoots everything from celebrity portraits to food. His work has enabled him to travel the world and his latest grant is taking him back to Uganda.

“PSC has a great mentorship program. This enabled me to link up with Justin McManus from The Age and he guided me not just technically but offered insights into the industry and its expectations....this made me ready when I started to land assignments.”

– Chris Hopkins

MICHAEL FOXINGTON

COMMERCIAL PHOTOGRAPHER

After graduating, Michael secured a full-time job through the PSC Job Register as a studio photographer for a large homewares company. In his spare time, he photographs theatre, headshots, portraits, fashion and personal fine art projects.

“I chose PSC because I had gotten as far as I could on my own. I needed guidance, I needed mentorship and I needed to see beyond my own limitations. I came to PSC and saw work on the walls that inspired me, and thought I want to make work like this.”

– Michael Foxington

ELIZABETH BYSOUTH

COMMERCIAL |
FASHION PHOTOGRAPHER

Elizabeth graduated in 2019 completing a major folio focusing on contemporary fashion. Colourful and fluid, her work reflects Melbourne's current streetwear fashion trends. Already working full time using her photography, video and website skills, she's also building her fashion photography business.

“I would definitely recommend PSC ...I liked that it's centred around photography and videography, this made it so motivating as you're constantly around people who enjoy the same things you do.”

- Elizabeth Bysouth

CHLOE SMITH

EDITORIAL PHOTOGRAPHER

Chloe combines working for The Weekly Times with her freelance commercial work. Working in a rural environment to capture visual stories she constantly photographs people, cattle, sheep, fruit, vegetables, harvests, machines and beautiful landscapes. Chloe's successful freelance business focuses on lifestyle, underwater and fashion photography.

“I am very thankful for my teachers and their weekly feedback. I was encouraged to make photographs as often as possible, to keep pushing on and creating no matter what! PSC also got me out of my comfort zone (a lot) and it's all been for the better!”

– Chloe Smith
